Programme/Course Information

Course content, admission, residency, nationality and/or language requirements for courses or certificates of competency are detailed on the applicable course page, on the website.

Course Duration:

For online courses, the duration is 15 weeks.

For schools courses, the duration is 12 weeks.

For home study courses, the duration is 15 weeks, except for Boat Master which is 30 weeks.

For Classroom courses, the durations vary but the duration of each course is stated on the webpage for each course and in the course prospectus.

Enrolment Procedures

Enrolment occurs online via the website at <https://coastguard.nz/education>

Part of the enrolment process is acceptance and acknowledgement of Coastguard Education's Terms, Conditions and Refund policy, and Learner Acknowledgement terms and conditions all included in the Learner Handbook (Page 10).

All courses are open-entry with no conditions or prerequisites unless otherwise noted.

NZCiDMO learners will work together with the NZCiDMO Programme Lead when enrolling on the programme.

Fees, refunds, and withdrawals

Course, programme, tuition and assessment fees are subject to annual review and adjustment by the Management Team. Fees are subject to change.

All current fees are listed on the website (www.coastguard.nz/education) and are available on request.

Only a completed programme or unit standards will show on your NZQA ROA. Individual Coastguard short courses that have been passed will be recorded on a Coastguard NDB (National Database) and you will receive a certificate.

If a learner chooses to withdraw from a course, they may be entitled to a refund in accordance with the refund policy. See policy (Page 11).

Please complete and return the Request for Refund Form (instructions under the Forms section of this handbook).

Recognition for prior learning

If you are enrolling into a programme of study and feel that you have proof of having met a course's learning outcomes, prior to starting the programme, you can apply for Credit Recognition and Transfer (CRT) or Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL).

CRT is normally only granted in cases of direct equivalency, where the course syllabus and assessment criteria matches or exceeds the certificate or module applied for.

RPL applicants are required to demonstrate current competency through formal assessment. This is best achieved by sitting the current assessment for the relevant module.

There is an evaluation fee for this process. The evidence you provide of previous course and assessment material will be evaluated and must meet all the learning outcomes for a course.

Assessments

Assessments are completed at the end of each course and are valuable for ensuring that the knowledge and skills from the course can be applied appropriately in different situations.

Assessment results are recorded and reported by the Academic Administrator with individual certificates, credits and qualifications (if applicable) sent to learners directly upon completion (this takes up to 4 weeks) and uploaded to NZQA.

Extensions:

The specific course or programme format will dictate the pace of study and time to completion.

After this time, if the learner has not completed the course, the enrolment is recorded as “expired”.

One time extension may be provided on request on a case by case basis to the Coastguard Education Manager, due to exceptional circumstances or some unforeseen event beyond the control of the learner.

Learners who enrol on to the NZCiDMO (NZ Certificate in Domestic Maritime Operations) will agree an Individual Learning Plan with their assigned Programme Lead.

Further Evidence Required and Resits

If your assessment does not meet the required level, you will be given an option to resit. If you narrowly miss the pass mark you may be allowed to go through the Further Evidence Required (FER) process to reach the required standard.

If you do not get a pass mark after this (FER), you will need to redo the assessment within the time frame given to you (Re-sit) (See page 11).

Academic Integrity, cheating and AI.

Coastguard expects that all work submitted for assessment and verification is the learners' own work and in their own words. Learners will be asked to declare that all of the work submitted is their own.

Plagiarism is when information from another source such as another learner or website is submitted word for word. This is plagiarism as it is someone else's work.

AI can be used for accessing more information, but any assessment answers must not be generated from any artificial intelligence. ChatGPT may not be available if you are in trouble on the water.

Cheating or plagiarism is not tolerated by Coastguard and there is a formal process to investigate and take action, if there is cause to suspect cheating or plagiarism (See page 15).

Appeal an assessment decision

If you do not agree with the assessor's decision, please seek clarification from the Academic Administrator. If you are still dissatisfied with the explanation of your grade, you are able to make an application to appeal the assessment decision. You will need to supply some form of evidence to support your case to the Academic and Quality Manager, use the Appeal of Assessment Form (See page 20).
